Tagline

Three days to change the course of history

Short synopsis

A moral tale and a political thriller: a few days before the term of her mandate, the President must make a major decision concerning the destiny of France.

Long synopsis

Elisabeth de Raincy, the French President, has decided to withdraw from political life. Three days before the first round of the presidential election, she learns from her Secretary-General, Franck L'Herbier, that a scandal coming from abroad will splash her designated successor and give victory to the far-right candidate. They have three days to change the course of History. „If France falls, so does Europe,” warns the president's canny adviser, the Secretary-General. Directed by Diastème, the film poses many timely questions,, especially „What happens when state secrets are personal?”
