A recently divorced man meets an emotionally devastated widow and they begin a love affair.

Long synopsis

A Passion is a psychological chamber play in which Andreas, living of his own volition an isolated life on an island, is drawn together for a brief time with three people. Elis is a successful but emotionally cold architect. His wife Eva is an insomniac, perpetually trying to accommodate herself to those about her and completely dependent on her apathetic husband. Anna, an acquaintance, is a widow since a car accident killed her husband and child. In the past six months she has lived with Andreas. The decisive events have all happened before the film begins. They are disclosed not through the conventional device of flashbacks but in letters and dialogue.
